Continue activities following the story – It's Mine

By: Ran Cohen Harounoff
Illustrations: Ran Cohen Harounoff
הוֹצָאָה: מעריב
Age Group: Preschool (4–6)

כְּלָלִי

Family Activities

- Throughout the book, illustrator Liora Grossman has depicted each of the objects lost by the characters in the story. You may want to look through it together, and search for all the missing items. Have you found them all? Have you ever looked for something and realized it was hiding "right under your nose"?
- Page by page, Aviv meets a tractor, princess, cloud and clown that claim "It's mine!", but none give all the signs describing the ball that he had found. You may want to play a similar guessing game: one player closes their eyes, while the other chooses a small object, hides it behind their back, and describes it using some identifying features. The first player then opens their eyes and tries to guess which object is being described and concealed.
- How can we refrain from losing things that are important to us? Ask your child to offer some ideas about how to take care of their property, and share some tips with them on how you make sure you don't lose yours.
- Have you or your child ever lost something you loved? How did you feel? Have you found a lost object? Perhaps you too will have the privilege of returning it to its rightful owner! You may want to make a 'lost object' poster with a description of what you have found, along with your telephone number. You could go out on the street together and put the poster up in a public place. If anyone calls, don't forget to ask them for signs to make sure you indeed return the object to its rightful owner.

- At the end of the story, Aviv and Yuval play ball together. You too can to play ball – passing it to one another, trying to shoot hoops, or kicking it toward the goal... just make sure you don't lose it!

www.pjisrael.org More activities on the Pajama Library website