כְּלָלִי

Proposed Family Activities:

- You may want to join Noga and her father by acting the story out. Every time Noga meets an animal, you could do as she does: spread out your wings like a butterfly, crawl like a tortoise, or roar like a lion.
- Guess who: you could play charades, mimicking an animal, and letting the other guess which one you are.
- Reading the illustrations: you may want to suggest that your child leaf through the book and tell you the story by the order of the illustrations.
- Do you drive to kindergarten together, or walk? What do you see on your way? Who or what do you come across? Perhaps you might like to pay attention to flowers, trees, buildings, or even find large and small animals.
- Do you also have a game that helps you pass the time enjoyably on your way to kindergarten?

מִשְׂחָק

Here is a list of ideas for games you can play on your way:

- Parent hums a tune and child tries to guess it and sing along.
- You could decide what to look for on your way (certain color cars, a cat, bird, or police car).
- You're welcome to gallop, skip, or jump all the way to your kindergarten gate.
- Perhaps you would like to pick a certain mode of transportation (airplane, tractor, motorbike), and parent can put child on their shoulders and pretend to get to kindergarten on it.
- You could play a memory game to familiarize yourselves with the route: what will we be seeing next? A store, a tall building, a tree, and so on.
- You could collect something on your way, such as special shaped leaves or rocks.
